

the Apostle
Paul Ploorknor

Klaughtla - Hyphent

Notice of Paper Publication

Research professors from the Plfoord College, Netherlands have released a research paper detailing the relationship of the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians. The paper sheds new light on what the Corinthians were doing as well as and how the reclusive Paul tried from afar to direct Corinthian theological traffic.

The research paper is 7300 pages in length and covers in minute detail each letter, its motivation, its content, it's physical attributes revealing new and startling information about the Apostle himself. The following is a list of facts derived from the analysis of Professors Iduadnum Hyphent, PhD Theorobotic Re-Observationalism¹ and Linpaul Klaughtntla, PhD Theohypothetical NeoTriassicApoPaulyeometrics²

Facts about the letters

- Paul wrote 143 letters to the Corinthians over 48 years
- 23 letters were scornful
- 11 angry threatening letters
- 9 final warning letters
- 2 that's it, you're dead letters
- 8 clean slate letters
- 26 apologetic in tone letters
- 4 delusional calls for help
- 16 of the letters were blank
- 41 had different return addresses
- Paul rewrote over 100 letters, increasing and decreasing the size of the font many times
- 4 ½ letters were written in human oil
- 2 letters were tangles of hair and not letters at all
- Some letters were liquid
- All of the letters were carefully packaged in envelopes
- None of the letters were enclosed in a envelopes
- One letter made a loud noise and was destroyed
- The Corinthians sent 14 letters back for clarification
- The Corinthians may have never read any of the letters
- The Corinthians may have never received any of the letters
- Many letters had been found to be mis-delievered
- Many of Paul's letters were addressed to a man named Juan
- Many of Paul's letters were mistaken for bacon and were eaten and not read.
- The postal service refused to take any more of Pauls' letters.

Paul spent huge quantities of time writing and re-writing his letters to Corinthians

¹ The continuing observation of things that practice theology to discern whether they are robots or things acting like robots in the practice of theology

² Application of hypothetical calculus upon Triassic Period Apostolic a-Paulism demonstrating geometrical mapping to Paul's actual letters

Facts about Paul

- Paul stole the paper for 106 letters
- Paul got drunk and lost up to 7 letters
- Paul wrote up to 4 letters while eating

Paul palms his 17th letter to the Corinthians in this 14 century painting by Ulwell LaPargette

Paul's soft left hand was responsible for some of the longest letters.

Protein stains on many of Paul's letters prove he ate meat with his fingers on Fridays

- Paul wrote 2 letters in Jesus' studio apartment
- Paul wrote 10 letters that included secret prizes
- Paul hid the letters when people came
- The letters made Paul the original hoarder
- Paul letters reveal that he looked like Elvis Presley
- Paul's letters reveal that his hair was often filthy

Will the Real Paul Please Stand Up?

Which is it then? Some accounts of Paul are of a humble letter writer, others Paul most holy., others still Paul ugly and retarded. Who then was Paul the Apostle? Apostle of Christ or mad unsanitary letter writing fiend?

- A starving Paul ate many letters prior to sending them
- A retarded Paul stole letters from himself
- A foolish Paul stacked letters with abandonment near a lamp
- A vicious Paul poked, ripped and scarred select letters
- An organic Paul planted letters in the garden with anticipation
- An Avant Gard Paul plastered letters to the wall with mustard
- A vacationing Paul hired a ghost writer for 3 letters while away in Paris
- Paul was labeled a bon vivant while in Paris
- Paul procured a job at the postal service to deliver his own letters
- Paul's letters made him mad with jealousy
- Paul's letters broke up his first and third marriage
- The Corinthians claimed to have never even heard of Paul

Paul started delivering his own letters until the Corinthians gathered at the post office and told him to "Fuck Off"

- Paul was accused of being a woman
- Paul listed to the left frequently
- Paul was blind in one eye
- Paul may have been blind in both eyes
- Paul had an irregular nostril
- Paul's 14th letter to the Corinthians referred to Jesus as a fembot, Mary and Joseph as opportunists and the Holy Spirit as a bowl movement. These comments sparked the legendary fist fight with Jesus in the aftermath of the last supper.
- Paul's last name is likely one of the following:
 - Ploorknor (73%)
 - MonteMillblanc (14%)
 - Williams (8%)
 - Gonzalez (5%)

Conclusions

The Apostle Paul Ploorknor was a fascinating character whose bloodline persists today and has been traced to Waluud, Moldanya, and the Sandwich Islands.

About the Authors

Linpaul Klaughtla, PhD
Theohypothetical NeoTriassic
ApoPaulygeometrics

Iduadnum Hyphent, PhD
Theorobotic
Re-Observationalism